Maryland Wins ACC Championship

GERMANTOWN, Md. (theACC.com) -- Following a one-year absence, the Maryland Terrapins returned the Atlantic Coast Conference Men's Soccer Championship trophy to College Park.

Playing before an enthusiastic crowd of 9,341 at the Maryland Soccerplex, the top-seeded Terps tallied a goal in each half to edge second-seeded and defending champion North Carolina, 2-1, in the Nov. 11 title match.

"What a great day for Maryland soccer and the state of Maryland," Terps coach Sasho Cirovski exclaimed. "This was a fantastic atmosphere and this was one of the great moments in our soccer history because it's the first ACC Championship we were able to win in the state of Maryland. I'll cherish this one forever."

Maryland claimed its fifth ACC title since the league began determining its champion via tournament format in 1987. The championship was the third in five seasons for the Terps, who also prevailed in 2008 and 2010.

Maryland Favored to Win ACC Title

Maryland is the narrow preseason favorite to claim the 2012 Atlantic Coast Conference Men's Soccer Championship, according to a vote of the league's nine head coaches.

The Terrapins, who return two MAC Hermann Trophy Preseason Watch List candidates in senior defender Taylor Kemp and senior midfielder John Stertz, amassed 72 total points in the balloting. Defending NCAA and ACC champion North Carolina placed second with 71 points in the coaches' vote, which awarded nine points for each first-place ballot, eight points for each second-place, etc.

Maryland received three first-place votes, while UNC led with four. Wake Forest, which finished third in the balloting with 60 total points, picked up the other two first-place votes.
